Part II: The Sacraments — The Holy Eucharist

In What Respect The Eucharist Is A Sacrament

But pastors should carefully observe that in this mystery there are many things to which sacred writers have from time to time attributed the name of Sacrament. For, sometimes, both the consecration and the Communion; nay, frequently also the body and blood itself of our Lord, which is contained in the Eucharist, used to be called a Sacrament. Thus St. Augustine says that this Sacrament consists of two things, the visible species of the elements, and the invisible flesh and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ Himself. And it is in the same sense that we say that this Sacrament is to be adored, meaning the body and blood of our Lord.

Now it is plain that all these are less properly called Sacraments. The species of bread and wine themselves are truly and strictly designated by this name.

How The Eucharist Differs From All The Other Sacraments

How much this Sacrament differs from all the others is easily inferred. For all the other Sacraments are completed by the use of the material, that is, while they are being administered to some one. Thus Baptism. attains the nature of a Sacrament when the individual is actually being washed in the water. For the perfecting of the Eucharist on the other hand, the consecration of the material itself suffices, since neither (species) ceases to be a Sacrament, though kept in the pyx.

Again in perfecting the other Sacraments there is no change of the matter and element into another nature. The water of Baptism, or the oil of Confirmation, when those Sacraments are being administered, do not lose their former nature of water and oil; but in the Eucharist, that which was bread and wine before consecration, after consecration is truly the substance of the body and blood of the Lord.

Announcements

Today we observe the Solemnity of Corpus Christi with a special procession and Benediction. Corpus Christi commemorates the institution of the Most Holy Sacrament of the Altar, which, on account of Holy Week, could not be celebrated with sufficient solemnity on Holy Thursday.

There will be a special second collection today to benefit the Mater Dei Sisters, in gratitude for their work for our parish and especially our children, to help them offset expenses. Please make checks out to St. Therese the Little Flower Church. We will then forward all money raised to the Sisters.

A happy and blessed Father's Day to all the fathers in our parish, and also — don't forget! — our pastor, who is a spiritual father. There are special Father's Day Mass intention envelopes available in the vestibule. Please hand them directly to Father before Mass begins.

Fr. Trough will be on retreat this week. Please keep him and all our clergy in your prayers.

Our next All Night Adoration is scheduled for June 30/July 1.

Fr. Gregory Drahman, CMRI, will be visiting us on Sunday, July 9.
